Acknowledgments Summary

This book took years to complete, and the journey was unpredictable, even for the author. Gratefulness is extended to those who patiently waited during the extensive phases of research, writing, and revisions, with the hope that this effort proves rewarding. Writing acknowledgments is likened to creating an Oscar speech, filled with emotion and gratitude towards many individuals.

Special thanks are given to Chris, a symbol of selflessness; to Cullen, Eleanor, Margaret, and Louisa, the author's pride; to the mother, Julie, for her unwavering patience over twenty-nine years while enduring countless historical facts; to Carolyn, who humorously reflects on missed synchronized swimming opportunities; and to Sara, whose efficiency is unmatched, bringing vibrancy even to mundane tasks.

The author dedicates their work to Lexi, who embodies positivity, and appreciates the team at SME for their crucial support during the writing process. Deep gratitude is expressed towards Adam Grant and Richard Pine. Also acknowledged are Helen Healey-Cunningham and Katherine Howe, who provided constructive challenges to the author's ideas, shaping the book into a significant contribution.

Further thanks go to Heather Jackson and Kari Anton for facilitating connections with various characters featured in the manuscript. Adrienne, known for sharing delightful memes, and James, who is described as small yet mighty, are also recognized.

Supportive figures like Carlos Whittaker, Nicole Walters, and Lauren Kachinske are mentioned for their motivational encouragement. Long-time friend Mary Wagner is appreciated for a remarkable favor.

A special mention highlights Jermaine Fowler, JeMar Tisby, and Jasmine Holmes, evoking sincere gratitude. The author embraces the community of "Governersds," feeling honored to be part of their impactful movement, and extends warmth and affection to the Governerd Book Club, encapsulating the essence of connection with both gratitude and camaraderie.
